

Greek-American Businesswoman on Forbes' '30 Under 30 List'

by Ioanna Zikakou - Jan 29, 2015

Greeks are everywhere and that includes Forbes' "30 Under 30" list, which selects some of the brightest and most successful young people in the world for 2015.

The list includes people from various sectors and fields. This year it included Alexandra Cavoulacos in the Media category.

The 28-year-old woman has a Greek father, while her mother has origins from Belgium and Hungary. She was born and raised in Washington and after the age of 10, she also lived with her parents in New York and Paris. In fact, at some point she even worked at the U.S. Embassy, in Paris.

Alexandra Cavoulacos had the privilege of being included on the prestigious list, after co-founding a company called "The Muse." The company — which she founded along with Kathryn Minshew and Melissa McCreery — essentially helps thousands of people build their careers and find the right job.

This is not the first time that Cavoulacos, who studied at Yale University, has been at the center of attention. The Business Insider had included her in its "30 Most Important Women Under 30 in Tech" last year, while TIME described her as a "champion" in the field, noting that "The Muse is a must follow for anyone interested in learning the secrets of job searches, productivity and other tricks of the workplace trade.

- See more at: <http://usa.greekreporter.com/2015/01/29/greek-american-businesswoman-in-forbes-30-under-30-list/#sthash.v5yZ0efd.dpuf>

Alexandra Cavoulacos: The Greek among the top young people in Media

Forbes presents the 30 Under 30 in Media who are defining and driving the ever-shifting world of news and content. Alexandra Cavoulacos is among the young people that made an impact in the media field. On 7th place we find Alexandra Cavoulacos. The Daily Muse is an American news website and blog founded by Kathryn Minshew, Alexandra Cavoulacos and Melissa McCreery. It maintains a team of more than 140 writers and their articles are syndicated on Forbes, The Huffington Post and other sites. “My father is Greek, and my mother is Belgian Hungarian,” she explains. Born in Washington, D.C., Cavoulacos moved between D.C., New York, and France until she was ten years old, when she finally settled in Paris. She graduated from Yale University, where she was the Executive Director of Global21 – a network of international affairs magazines at premier universities around the world. She was also a co-founder of PYP, where she brought smart content to young professional women. Prior to founding The Daily Muse, she was a management consultant, solving critical strategic and operational questions for top firms worldwide. - See more at: <http://www.ellines.com/en/good-news/18237-forbes-ellinida-stous-korufaious-neous-ton-media/#sthash.YHDP1bwE.dpuf>

Διαβάστε περισσότερα: <http://www.ellines.com/en/good-news/18237-forbes-ellinida-stous-korufaious-neous-ton-media/>

Copyright © Ellines.com